THE SUFFERING SERVANT OF JEHOVAH

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 52:13-53:12
GOLDEN TEXT—With his stripes we are healed.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Salvation Cost.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Suffering Savior.

This prophecy is the grand center of the Old Testament. The bond servant of Jehovah with great wisdom glorously executes the divine purpose at the cost of great suffering.

I. The Servant's Triumph (52:13-15).

By the servant here is meant the coming Messiah (42:1).

1. His wisdom (v. 13).

"He will deal prudently," for his name is "Counselor" (9:6). He was filled with the spirit of wisdom and understanding (11:2).

2. He shall be exalted (v. 13).

He was to be extolled and magnified because he was the "Mighty God (9:6), even Immanuel." Because of Christ's devotion to His task of redemption, God has highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name (Phil. 2:9).

3. The appearance of the Servan (v. 14).

Because of His marred "visage," He wholly disappointed the expectation of the carnal minds who looked for outward signs of royalty and worldly greatness. Jesus, as Jehovah's servant, was tortured and beaten by men as He went about doing the business committed to him.

4. The issue of His ministry (v. 15).

"He shall sprinkle many nations." This reveals Him as the great High Priest sprinkling the nations with His blood, cleansing them from their sins. Just as the people were astonished with the silence of Jesus in the midst of His shameful treatment, so shall the kings and great men of the earth be dumb before Him when the suffering Servant shall be exalted.

II. The Servant Despised and Rejected (53:1-3).

1. The unbelief of the Jews (v. 1).

(1) They disbelieved the words of the prophets.

(2) They did not recognize the hand of the Lord in the miracles and wonders which He wrought.

2. The origin of the Servant (v. 2).

He sprang out of the stump of Judaism. The sad condition of the people at that time is expressed by "dry corn."

3. The Man of Sorrows (v. 3).

He was afflicted and rejected.

III. The Vicarious Suffering of the Servant (53:4-6).

1. His griefs and sorrows were ours (v. 4). This awful suffering was looked upon by the world as occasioned by sin—"we did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

2. He was beaten for us (v. 5). That which was our due was meted out to Him. Observe the words, "wounded," "bruised," "chastised," "stripes"—how awful they picture His treatment, and yet "our" shows that His suffering was vicarious.

3. The reason for (v. 6).

All humanity, Jews and Gentiles, had gone astray. God laid upon Him the iniquity of us all.

IV. The Death of the Servant (53:7-9).

1. The strange silence (v. 7).

He opened not His mouth. He went as a lamb to the slaughter, "He answered them never a word, insomuch that the governor marveled greatly" (Matt. 27:14).

2. Unconcern of multitude (v. 8).

They failed to discern the fact that He suffered in their stead.

3. Buried with the wicked and the rich (v. 9).

The prophecy was fulfilled in His crucifixion between two thieves and burial in Joseph's tomb.

V. The Servant's Ultimate Victory (vv. 10-12).

1. His sufferings expressed the divine will (v. 10).

The Lord Himself laid this burden upon Him, and through His sufferings the law was vindicated and redemption was accomplished.

2. A spiritual progeny resulted from His death. (v. 10).

The fundamental law of the universe, which is life out of death, found supreme expression in His death on the cross (John 12:24).

3. Through death shall come to realization His fondest hope (v. 11).

He shall see the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied.

4. The divine reward (v. 12).

The divine Conqueror shall share the spoils of victory.

He Bares Our Sicknesses

When the even was come, they brought unto Him many that were possessed with devils: and He cast out the spirits with His word, and healed all that were sick; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.—Matthew 8:16, 17.

EXILED SWEDES WANT TO RETURN

Colony on Baltic Hopes to See Native Land.

Stockholm.—After 250 years of exile from their ancestral homeland a Swedish colony which now numbers 800 villagers and farmers of Gammalvensky in the government of Chersen, southern Russia, has appealed to the Stockholm government to be brought back to Sweden.

Their story is that of a community exiled for centuries yet always dreaming of their homeland, and for generation after generation rigidly maintaining their native schools, language, customs and religion. Their ancestors left Swedish shores about 1670, and for 100 years were settled on the Dnieper island of Dagoe.

In 1751 Empress Catherine II of Russia ordered them to the Ukrainian steppes near the falls of the river Dnieper. Cossacks escorted them on that forced march. Their caravans, like the wagon trains that crossed the western plains of America in the days of '49, crawled 1,200 miles to the new home.

The journey took nine months, and more than half the colonists died on the way. In 1762 the group numbered only 200 persons, according to the cherished church record of the Swedish vicar.

When forefathers of the group left Sweden, Dagoe Island and all the Baltic territory belonged to Sweden. The liberties they had enjoyed under Swedish rule were taken from them in 1721 with Russia annexing and onward the sea, took possession of Baltic shores. Russian landowners attempted to force the Swedish settlers into a condition of serfdom.

The Swedes sent deputy after deputy to the empress, and at last, in 1780, succeeded in getting an imperial ukase which defended their rights, a precursor of the liberty granted all Russian peasants 80 years later.

But under the new freedom the colony was ordered to the Ukrainian steppes.

The tenacity with which they have clung to Swedish culture, a record phonetically preserved in parish Bibles, has aroused deep admiration through Sweden and the government is studying plans to help the Gammalvensky colony realize its ambitions.

London Fog Only Friend of Youths in Courting

London.—A lovers' lane in London where young folks may have leisure and privacy for courting is urged by Rev. J. Shepherd, an islington clergyman.

"The curse of the crowd is the ruin of romance," he said in pleading the cause of the city's youth.

The London fog, so generally and violently execrated, is the only friend of youthful Londoners in their courting, the minister said.

Oh, Well, All Right

Paris.—Feminists are arguing vigorously for the right of women to be guillotined. Three wagons are in jail under sentence of death. Lest public opinion become averse to their execution, feminists have asserted that, while the death penalty should be abolished, nevertheless while in force it ought to apply equally to men and women.

RADIUM BENEFITS ARE EXAGGERATED

Mayo Clinic Physician Tells of Its Value.

Rochester, Minn.—Although its use probably never will give the greatly exaggerated results credited in early investigations, radium has taken a definite place in the field of medicine and has proved of infinite value in the treatment of many diseases, according to Dr. Harry H. Bowen of the Mayo clinic here.

Understanding of the limitations of radium treatment and co-operation between the surgeon, the roentgenologist and the radiologist promise to bring about great advances in use of radium, Doctor Bowen said. The public should be educated, he declared, that radium is of great value in treating some ailments but cannot be regarded as a "cure all."

Since Mme. Curie announced in 1898 the discovery of a substance she called "Polonium," interest in the investigation has revealed more about the nature of radium than is known about any other element, the professor pointed out. Also in the later and more important developments is claimed its increased use as an internal treatment.

"Radium can be enclosed in small sealed containers and inserted into the deeper tissues where its therapeutic rays may reach the affected areas," he explained.

Discovery of the therapeutic x- ray giving promise of a cure for a cardinal evil to Socquerel, who found that the skin near a cost pocket in which a container of the substance was carried became irritated after a few hours. His investigations following this discovery were the beginning of radiumtherapy.

"The scarcity of radium has to a great extent curtailed its development and use," Doctor Bowen said. Its value he explained, is $70,000 a gram.

"Radium as a therapeutic substance is an ideal preparation. Its energy is liberated at a constant rate and no way ever has been found to alter the process. Neither heating nor cooling will change the rate of its disintegration."

Its intensity is regulated by the distance it is placed from the area to be treated, as the square of the distance between the radium and the skin is increased so the "strength of the radium lessens," Doctor Bowen said.

Owing to the large initial cost, Doctor Bowen said, radiumtherapy must for the present be limited to a small number of treatment stations located at medical centers.

"Should all the patients who might be helped by radium apply today for treatment there would not be sufficient radium at hand or enough trained workers available to care for them."

Vanished Race Leaves Odd Pictures in Caves

Boles City, Okla.—Carved on cave and canyon walls in the Oklahoma panhandle is the pictorial record of a vanished race, the Parsone Indians.

The pictographs are described by Alfred B. Thomas, history instructor at the University of Oklahoma, as unlike any other known Indian art. They are found only in a restricted area of the Oklahoma and Texas panhandle and in southern Colorado.

Animals now extinct are depicted by the Indians' rock carvings. Foundations of palisaded stone and timber houses once occupied by the Parsones still are found, but efforts to trace the history of the race have been fruitless.

Superimposed on the Indian carvings are more recent engravings telling of Spanish and Mexican occupation and the visit of such American adventurers as Kit Carson.

American Gold Dollar to Be Czech Standard

Prague.—The American gold dollar will shortly become the monetary standard of Czechoslovakia, the government announced recently. The dollar will be used as a standard with the present Czechoslovakia crown convertible into gold on demand. Adoption of the gold standard would involve no increase in prices or in cost of living, it was said. (The present value of the Czechoslovakian crown is about 2.96 cents).

Takes Poison His Sleep

Scarborough, England.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Noel Sykes, nineteen-year-old chemist's apprentice, decided that he took poison during a period of somnambulism. He had been addicted to sleep-walking for many years.

Find Havana 'Tunnels' Ancient Wine Cellars

Havana.—A network of tunnels discovered recently under the ancient municipal building here and first believed to be catacombs or at least secret passageways for the olden time Spanish padres, are, says the public works department, only old wine cellars.

Historians claim that Havana at one time was underlaid with a maze of tunnels connecting the many churches and convents with the waterfront. The purpose was to afford means of escape to priests and nuns who guarded immensely rich religious treasures.

HAS NEWS FOR TIRED MOTHERS

Tells About Wonderful Restorer.

"This is something I want to recommend to tired mothers with little babies," says Mrs. B. Mellon, 72 Pleasant St., Portland, Maine. "Before I took Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic I was tired out and rundown caring for a nursing baby. The baby was puny and fretful and would cry most of the time.
The first bottle of Paw-Paw Tonic helped both me and my child. She stopped crying and commenced to smile and play. You can well imagine how happy that made me feel. Since then I have gained four pounds and am no longer thin or nervous and I have much more strength and ambition.
After reading of the wonderful benefits received by Mrs. Mellen, no further recommendation of Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic for mothers is needed.

I believe in my remedies. I know that they do all that I claim for them.

At the union service at the Methodist church last Sunday night the pastors of the local churches announced a six-weeks' church attendance campaign beginning next Sunday, April 21, and continuing through the month of May. Every member is urged to attend the church to which he or she may belong, at least once every Sunday; both services including Sunday school, if possible. Visitors welcome.

Rev. W. M. Thompson announces his goal of 400 present next Sunday morning and 300 at night. Mr. Reamey with a smaller membership, sets his figures at 200 and 150 respectively for morning and night and Mr. Redding also desires a large response from his people during the campaign.

Every one needs the church; the church needs every one Rise early Sunday morning and take the family to church; you will feel better all the week.

The postor of Memorial church will preach next Sunday morning and night at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at 9:45, C. W. Smith, supt. If you have no regular place to worship, you are cordially invited to Memorial Methodist. Sound Doctrine Simply Preached.

Research, Then Education

Efficiency in agriculture keeps on rising, say the government's observers. But it still rises slower than efficiency in mining or manufacturing. The department puts education first among all the influences that are helping. Scientific research, which really opens the way that education follows, is second.

"About all the grower needs to do is buy from a reputable fertilizer dealer and use a fertilizer that has been mixed specially for tobacco."—J. M. Pierson.

—V-C—

How Long Can It Go On?

Every year the crops of the United States take out of the ground five billion, nine hundred million pounds of plant food MORE than the farmers put back as commercial fertilizers. This is the annual NET loss to the farms of this country, just in crops, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Soil erosion washes away 20 times as much, on top of that, every year.

"MEANS OF REDUCING costs lie within the means of most farmers, and the more far-sighted have already begun to take advantage of them."—Remick W. Dunlap.

Around midnight, or just before day, or any other time, the tobacco in the curing barn may get right. It's a careful job, and a man must know his business to do it.

Advantages of Priming

The advantages of priming as a method of gathering bright tobacco, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, are that the leaves are picked as they ripen; there is no stalk to absorb weight from the leaves in curing, those being therefore 10 to 12 per cent heavier than if cured on the stalk; the leaves that are left to ripen gain 20 to 25 per cent in weight by remaining on the living plant; and the primed leaves will have more gum or oil, greater elasticity, more body. The disadvantage of priming is that it takes more labor in the field.

Depends On The Man

"There are many farms in this country with a business too small to support a family well. But there are limits to the size that a given man has the ability to operate," says the 1927 Yearbook of Agriculture. . . . Another way of saying that it all depends on who's farming.

A Preacher of Farming

One of the hardest working and best meaning folks in the world is your typical average country agent. He's a sort of preacher about farming instead of religion. Yet how often does he get credit for trying? Or for knowing what he's talking about? Still, FULL ROWS has noticed one thing: the farmers who make money year in and year out always listen when the county agent talks. The reason may be due to the listening, or the listening may be due to the money, but somehow they go together.

Booklets on cotton, booklets on tobacco, booklets on corn and wheat and a dozen other subjects—and a lot of good common sense in them and full of helpful hints—are yours for the asking. Name your subject. Write to V-C Agricultural Service Bureau, Richmond, Va.

"Tried some of this new plant-food fertilizer on my yard," a contributor writes to The Fertilizer Review. "Every time I put it on the grass I had to run for the lawn mower." . . . Which proves that it wasn't Farmer, the V-C specialty for lawns. He wouldn't have had time to run for the mower.

—V-C—

"As yield per acre runs 1125, net cost per pound goes DOWN."—U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Old Truths in New Clothes

Farming methods change with every generation, but the principle stays the same: to grow profitable crops. Everything turns on the "profitable." Ways that were profitable 50 years ago, or even 25, won't make a living today. Take fertilizers, for instance. A thin scattering of a low analysis mixture used to be good enough. But the time has come when wise farmers buy high analysis mixtures—V-C Super Analysis grades, says the press agent—and not only that but they use PLENTY on every acre. "Plenty" means every pound that can be used profitably. And man, how things do grow then!

From cigarettes alone the government got close to $500,000,000 in 1928 and nobody thinks the federal revenue tax on cigarettes in 1928.

High Yields Per Acre

"Economic necessity forces European farmers to make high yields per acre, largely from the liberal use of commercial fertilizer. High acre yields and correspondingly bigger profits can be made in the United States by a more liberal use of fertilizers."—J. C. Pridmore, National Fertilizer Association.

"You would not try to empty your bank account. You should be equally sure that you do not overdraw your soil fertility account."—NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES.

Four Types of Flue-Cure

Flue-cure tobacco is defined in four types by the government in its standard grading rules. Type 11 is produced principally in the Piedmont sections of Virginia and North Carolina. Type 12 is grown principally in the coastal section of North Carolina. Type 13 is characteristic of the tidewater and coastal sections of South Carolina and the southeastern counties of North Carolina. Type 14 is produced principally in southern Georgia, extending into Florida and Alabama.
